

Place-based funding framework

In July 2015, we began a programme of research into place-based funding, which aimed to inform the development of the approaches used by UK trusts and foundations. Using the findings from the first phase of this research, we produced a framework to support funders in the planning and implementation of place-based approaches. This is presented in the form of questions linked to key stages in the development of place-based working: rationale, design and delivery. The aim is to help anticipate, address and review the challenges of place-based approaches in order to achieve their potential benefits.

The full framework with accompanying research reports and case studies are available at www.ivar.org.uk
